This session will summarized key findings, discussed current challenges faced by TechHire grantees in a peer problem solving exercise, and provided a tool that helped identify what worked well in a particular partnership and areas where you might want to place future emphasis to ensure sustainability.

Partnerships, like all relationships, are hard work. Understanding the essential elements of effective partnerships is key to building them and making them last. This session shared a TechHire grantees Sonya Francois, John Celestand, Theresa Soto, and Lloyd Lusher from Goodwill Industries International, Inc., experience partnering, provided time for peer problem solving, and offered a tool to better understand what is working well for your partnership and where you might want to focus your continuous improvement efforts.

This workshop also served as the foundation for a deeper dive "Partnership 201" session that highlighted tangible tools for documenting, solidifying and sustaining partnerships.
